Western Powers Outlaw Russian Mark In Berlin

BERLIN, March 21—(AP)—The western powers have outlawed the Russian east mark in their sectors of Berlin, splitting the city's economy completely.

The new Allied order yesterday, declaring that the Russian's currency no longer would be accepted as legal tender, had been expected.

Western Berlin now has one currency—the west mark; and eastern Berlin has another—the Soviet east mark. The west mark has been worth about four times as much as the east mark.

Although the order is effective immediately, the east mark will still be good in western sectors for rationed foods this month and will be accepted in April for rent and taxes.

There were reports Russians would retaliate promptly in the currency battle.

The "currency question has been one of the main issues in the Soviet blockade of Berlin. Several international discussions, both inside and outside of the United Nations, have failed to solve it. A. U. N. committee recently had failed to reach a solution.

Long Overdue
The western Allies said putting western Berlin on a west-mark only basis was "long overdue" because "grave economic and social injustices have resulted from the dual currency arrangement."

The currency changeover may leave some western Berliners holding a lot of east marks since each person can trade in only 15 east marks for western currency.

Brig. Gen. Frank L. Howley, American commandant in Berlin, said he foresaw no Russian retaliation as a result of the new currency move. Others here were not so confident.

"What bigger counter-measures could the Soviets possibly take," Howley said, "than the brutal blockade with which they attempted to starve west Berlin?"

Meanwhile, the Russians announced they had begun a "big new

4 Autos Damaged In City Mishaps

Four cars were damaged, but no one injured in three traffic accidents in Salem over the weekend, according to the police department.

Ralph Davis of R. D. 1, Berlin Center, told police he was visiting at 385 W. Pershing st. when he heard a crash at 1:50 a. m. Sunday and looked out to see a car driving away from his. He gave chase and caught up with the other car at the corner of Sharp and W. Pershing.

The driver was Tony J. Colman of 411 N. Ellsworth ave., who said he had backed into Davis' car. The damage to the Davis auto was slight.

A truck operated by Raymond D. Simpson of Milwaukee made a left turn from State onto S. Lincoln at 5:10 p. m. Sunday and struck an auto driven by Charles J. Congress of Cleveland, which was waiting on the traffic light.

The left front bumper and fender on the Congress car were damaged.

Police said a car driven by Beatrice Maeder of Canton struck another operated by Mike Smirchansky of R. D. 1, North Jackson, on N. Lundy ave. at 11:45 a. m. Saturday.

The right rear fender of the latter car was damaged and the left rear fender of the Maeder vehicle was saved in.

RAIL ISSUES SETTLED AFTER LONG DISPUTE

Raise, Shorter Hours Are Agreed To In History-Making Contracts

CHICAGO, March 21—(AP)—Final terms on a $540,000,000 wage pact have been reached in the 11-month dispute between the nation's railroads and 16 non-operating unions.

The settlement, worked out on a formula recommended by a presidential fact-finding board, was described by a union spokesman as the "most momentous" wage and hour movement in the history of American industry.

It will extend the basic 40-hour week to the railroads for the first time and affects 1,000,000 employees.

The 40-hour week at the same pay the workers received for 48 hours becomes effective next Sept. 1, but an additional wage boost of seven cents an hour is retroactive to last Oct. 1.

Excepted from the general terms of the "third round" wage pact are the yardmasters who will continue on a six-day week with an increase of 10 cents an hour.

On a straight time rate, the average hourly wage is raised from $1.18 to $1.46. The union's original demands were for a 40-hour week, Mondays through Fridays at no pay reduction, time and a half for Saturdays, double time for Sundays, and an increase of 25 cents an hour. The roads refused the shorter work week and overtime rates and offered a 10-cent pay hike.

Issue Was Toughest
The case was submitted to the fact-finding board in September 1948 after the unions had voted to strike. The board's recommendation of the five-day week was the toughest issue to settle and after several weeks of negotiations, the case was referred back for clarification.

Time, both sides agreed to accept the recommendations on how the five-day week should be applied. The clarifying recommendations were forthcoming within a week and the negotiators went to work immediately to incorporate them into contract terms.

A carrier spokesman said the settlement gives the employees "just what the fact-finding board intended to give them. No more, no less. The carriers had estimated cost of the award at $60,000,000.

G. E. Leighty of St. Louis, president of the Order of Railroad Telegraphers and one of the negotiators, said the recommendations "discriminated against the yardmasters by not recommending a shorter work week for them."

He added, however, that the agreement "brings to a successful conclusion the most momentous wage and hour movement in railroad history, or for that matter, in the history of American industry."

In handing down its recommendations, the board said that the 40-hour week is "firmly a part of our National Industrial Policy," to which the railroads "now stand out as a striking exception."

DISTRICT PEOPLE IN TAX VIOLATIONS
CLEVELAND, March 21—(INS)—The federal bureau of internal revenue reported today that the United States tax court will send a judge to Cleveland April 25 to try 84 cases of alleged income tax violations.

According to local authorities, the judge will be forced to consider such cases as the following:

1. Gust Theologos, a Canton grocer, kept his books in Greek. An interpreter translated the books into a $10,176 tax liability.

2. A Steubenville woman is protesting being charged four years in interest on a $174 tax delinquency. She claims it's not her fault the government waited so long to compute the delinquency.

3. An Alliance woman, in a woman's reformatory because of an alleged abortion practice, is protesting a $7,419 tax bill. Tax collectors say she neglected to report a $23,030 income in her lucrative, if dishonest, trade from 1942 to 1947.

Believes Major Portions Of His Program Will Go

WASHINGTON, March 21—(AP)—President Truman today denounced "trouble makers" who talk of a rift between him and congress. He said he and congress are "working together" for the good of the country.

In an address to the United States Conference of Mayors, the President also made a blistering new attack on the "real estate lobby." He said it is opposing his housing and rent control program, and is "the real enemy of the American home."

This "lobby" won't succeed, he declared, and predicted passage of his housing program, complete with public housing and slum clearance.

"It seems that whenever I make a recommendation to congress, many newspapers and columnists set up a howl about the President trying to dictate to the congress," Truman told the six hundred mayors of major cities.

"And then if the congress makes any decision that varies at all from my recommendations, these same troublemakers start a gleeful chorus about how the congress has thrown the whole Democratic program overboard."

"Of course, I differ with the action of the congress on some points, and where these differences are important I shall continue to urge the course I think is right."

"But basically the congress and the President are working together and will continue to work together for the good of the country."

"We are going to agree on a lot more things than we disagree on. And when the final score for this congress is added up, some of the selfish pressure groups are going to be pretty badly disappointed."

Just before leaving the White House to address the mayors' meeting at the Statler hotel, Truman had his usual Monday morning conference with Democratic leaders of congress.

These leaders came out of the President's office with predictions that congress will enact a major part of the White House legislative program.

House Speaker Rayburn of Texas said talk that the program is "bogging down" is "nonsense." Senator Lucas, the senate Democratic floor leader, said he agreed with Rayburn.

The major setbacks Truman has suffered this far in congress are these:

The house has passed a rent control bill differing widely from what the administration asked. For one thing, the bill would let states, counties and cities decide for themselves whether they want to keep rent control.

2. The administration failed in its efforts to put through the senate an anti-filibuster rule change intended to clear the way for action later on the President's civil rights program.

3. A senate committee pikeon-holed the President's nomination of his good friend, Mon Wallgren, to be chairman of the national resources security board.

Truman Expected To Seek Free Hand With Arms Fund

WASHINGTON, March 21—(AP)—President Truman is expected to ask congress for a free hand in allocating arms to Western Europe under the proposed billion dollar military aid program.

The program is scheduled to go to the Capitol about the same time as the North Atlantic security treaty, or immediately thereafter. Truman will send up the treaty for senate approval immediately after it is signed here by an expected 12 nations, two weeks from today.

According to present State department planning, the department is rounding up all military aid programs for Truman—the President should try to get from congress as much of a blank check authority as he can under whatever expenditure limit congress fixes.

Present estimates are that more than $1,000,000,000 will be required in the first 12 months to help Europe re-arm.

Sees Approval
Chairman Vinson (D) of Georgia of the house armed services committee predicted the arms requests "will be approved in both houses without a particle of trouble."

The senate alone, but by a two-thirds vote, must approve the new North Atlantic treaty if America is to take part. An Associated Press canvass of senators showed: 55 inclined to favor ratification, 1 opposed and 37 unwilling to go on record at this time. Two of the 95 senators were not reached and there is one vacancy.

The arms aid program is designed by the administration to carry out the "mutual aid" provision of the treaty. It would thereby help the countries of Western Europe fulfill their roles in the "common strategic plan" which is to be worked out by the Allied powers.

The first official reference to this grand scheme of defense for the western world under the projected treaty came Saturday night. It appeared in a State department pamphlet explaining the details of the treaty.

The two world wars, the department said, "proved that a major conflict in Europe would inevitably involve the United States." "The Atlantic treaty, it added, is "designed to give assurance" that if a third world war breaks out, the defense in which the actual military strength and the military potential of all the members will be integrated into a common strategic plan.

SALINEVILLE LAW ON MINES UPHELD
LIBBON, March 21—The Marshall Mining Co. of Youngstown cannot strip mine coal in Salineville, the third district appellate court held today in upholding a Columbiana county common pleas court decision.

The mining company brought suit attacking the village's ordinance passed Feb. 4, 1946, forbidding strip mining within the village limits. The company had previously bought a 60-acre farm underlain with coal in Washington township, of which 40 acres were in the village.

The company charged that the ordinance was not a valid exercise of police powers of the municipality. The lower court, visiting a section of the village where the company had mined coal prior to the passage of the ordinance, found deep ditches filled with stagnant water and high hills and upheld the ordinance.

Hanoverian Woman, Ill In Chicago, Revived
CHICAGO, Ill., March 21—Mrs. Lucile Newell, 74, of Hanoverton, Columbiana county, Ohio, was revived by firemen yesterday after suffering a heart attack in a Chicago bus depot.

Mrs. Newell said she was returning home from Los Angeles, where she visited friends. Rescue Squad Captain Joseph Shevlin quoted the woman as saying she had a slight heart attack Saturday in Sterling, Ill.

She was taken to St. Luke's hospital. Attendants said they understood she intended continuing to Ohio after her recovery.

The Problem Was Education

More light was shed on the provisions of the Taft-Hartley act during congressional hearings held on the Truman administration's proposed substitute than was shed during the whole time the law had been in effect.

And it's safe to guess that this light has something to do with letters to congressmen from working people in favor of keeping the Taft-Hartley act in effect. As had been demonstrated before, working people—members of labor unions—are not opposed to specific provisions of the law. They are opposed to the whole law, often for no better reason than the bad name given to it by union officials and propagandists.

Few of them have read the law itself. They know only by hearsay what it contains, and much of the hearsay has been slanted to suit the case being made against it by union politicians guarding their claimed right to a monopoly over the national labor supply. From the very first, the problem was education. And education takes a long time. It's the tortoise in the race with propaganda.

The Taft-Hartley repeal bloc in congress, acting under orders from the White House, tried to wind up the race before the tortoise could get established that the Taft-Hartley act has been grossly misrepresented by those who have most to fear from it—the hierarchy of labor union officials who want privileges that never have been granted to any vested interest in the United States.

Working It Both Ways

This week the trial of the 11 Communist leaders charged with conspiracy to advocate the overthrow of the United States by force and violence finally begins. It has taken 10 weeks to seat a jury and clear away the legal obstructions thrown up by defense counsel.

The actual trial will take many more weeks. As it rumbles along, with an appeal virtually certain to be made in the event the defendants are found guilty, one fact will become plainly evident. If the defendants are found guilty and their convictions are upheld on appeal, the Communist party in the United States will be driven underground.

Its leaders and members will disappear. All formal organizations will vanish behind a screen of secrecy. The party will become an underground organization, barred from legal existence. This prospect is disquieting to many Americans, including J. Edgar Hoover, director of the FBI.

But there always have been two sections of the Communist party in the United States—the section that worked in the open and the section that worked underground. The latter has been the more powerful, yet less publicized because it carried on its work behind the Communists who stayed in the open. This caused confusion. If the Communist party was legal—which it was—then why all the excitement?

The answer to that question is now obvious. The excitement is over a conspiracy to overthrow the United States. It wouldn't help matters any to rule that Communists who stay in the open are legal. They aren't the ones who need to be feared. It's the ones who always have worked underground who need to be feared. They shouldn't be any harder to keep track of if the Communist party is ruled illegal than they were before.

$300,000,000 At the Start

Backers of the "educational finance act of 1949" which has been reported favorably by unanimous vote of the senate labor and welfare committee, have built up a powerful case for the proposal.

They have shown that there is need for federal assistance to states and territories to finance a minimum program of elementary and secondary education and to reduce inequalities in educational opportunities among the states and territories.

They have claimed that the proposed legislation would do these things, without opening the door to federal interference in the management of schools. But as the U. S. senate moves toward a decision on the proposal, one great question hasn't been answered. It wasn't answered in the 80th congress, when the senate passed an identical bill which subsequently was sidetracked in the house.

That is the question of loading an other heavy financial responsibility on the federal government, to be discharged by federal taxation. The proposed law would go into effect with $300,000,000 a year at the start. But no one can be so naive as to believe that amount would not be increased in later years. The relentless pressure of the education lobby would force it higher and higher and higher. More and more money would be drained out of wealthy states for the benefit of poor states, which is the primary purpose of the proposed law. And in the meantime, the needs of education in the wealthy states also would be increasing, with local communities and state tax collectors scrambling for larger shares of what's left of tax dollars after Washington has taken its cut.

The issue raised by this proposal, like the issue raised by all proposals to load more spending obligations on the federal government, is whether or not that is the sensible way to handle money. It is not as the backers of the proposal choose to think it is, whether or not more money should be spent for education.

The Stars Say

For Tuesday, March 22

INCITED by excellent planetary aspects it is probable the faculties and forces may be keyed to high purpose, with the spirit of enterprise and initiative directed to the accomplishment of important matters, with detailed attention to both old and new aims and objectives.

Clever ideas and plans, perhaps involving change of patterns, new environs and contacts are forecast. Yet it may be wise to "look for the joker," or some form of sly or dubious entanglements which might have unhappy reactions of position, hopes, reputation.

For the Birthday

Those whose birthday it is, have excellent promise of going forward in a most astute, clever, and progressive manner, during the year with new plans, places and agreements to be considered. Sudden news, fresh starts, renewed offers, all show promise of happy fulfillments, with imagination as well as intuition the spur.

Nevertheless there is hint of undercover or sinister circumstances, calling for discretion, watchfulness and rigid adherence to principle and integrity, lest there be reactions on position, reputation and feelings, with emotional upsets.

A child born on this day is splendidly endowed for a successful and fruitful career, being versatile, talented and alert to the main chance. However, it may be easily victimized by sinister persons or its own emotional promptings.

Anyway with this radar screen around the country we can see who is coming if not who is listening.

It should work fine . . . worked fine as far back as 1941 at Pearl Harbor. This trouble was no one but loved it.

GUARDING YOUR HEALTH

Hard Condition To Overcome

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M. D.

There is an infection of the beard called barber's itch and known by the doctor as sycosis barbae.

This disorder, due to germs, usually begins in young manhood with the development of little swellings on the bearded area of the skin.

Pus is found in these swellings. The condition, if neglected, gradually spreads to other parts of the face covered by the beard and, after a period of years, the skin becomes shrunken and has a faint yellowish color. The pustules continue to develop.

Persons with this disorder often have fine white scales covering the scalp and loss of hair in the eyebrows.

Catholic Charities Reports On Year

During 1948, ninety-four families and 142 children in Columbiana county received service from Catholic Charities bureau according to reports given at a meeting of the advisory board. The board is composed of priests and lay representatives from each parish in the county.

Annual service report was given by Miss Mary Catherine Donahue, case worker. Fifty-three cases with 112 children received intensive service while 22 cases with 30 children received short-time service or referral to another agency.

Ninety-three children received service in their own homes. Nineteen boarding and adoptive homes were under supervision or studied during the year. Throughout the year 28 children received care in foster homes.

Children receiving care in various institutions numbered 18. Some children living with relatives also received attention. The case worker told of service to aged and several cases in which no children were involved. The increasing problem of transients and help for children in their own homes was discussed by board members.

Rev. J. Richard Gaffney, treasurer of board, gave the annual financial report, expenditures totaling $11,181.04. Approximately $6,000 of this was for child care. This included boarding home and institution payments, medical, clothing and miscellaneous expenditures for children under care of Catholic Charities.

The main portion of income was from Catholic Charities, Diocese of Youngstown. The agency also shared in Salem Community Fund.

Where possible parents are responsible for payments for children in placement. The rising cost of living has been noted in this work also, which has resulted in an increase in board rates to correspond with the rise in cost of care of children in Foster Homes.

SO THEY SAY

New moral power is our most crucial need today. It is a task for the home and the church.

—Coy Luther W. Youngdahl of Minnesota.

Over the nation as a whole, there is an increasing tendency for management and labor to look upon another general wage increase as contrary to the best interests of both.

—John A. Buzas, vice president, Ford Motor Co.

King Cotton has done more to ruin the South agriculturally and economically than anything else. Cotton has done more to damage Georgia than General Sherman ever did.

—Novelist Louis Bromfield.

If the imperialistic nations should start a war against the Soviet Union, the duty of Communists and all peace-loving people is to fight against them.

—Vile Post Finnish Communist leader.

I'm not going to let these old soldiers go to the post house if I can help it.

—Rep. John E. Rankin (D) of Mississippi, defending his veto of anti-bill.

Vacation Clothes Depend On Where You Plan To Go

A vacation can be anything from a day away from the office, to a week at a seaside resort, to a month in the country. When vacation time rolls around, the average man gives a couple of second thoughts to his clothes: What will he need? What can he take along to enjoy himself, his vacation and his clothes and at the same time not load himself down with luggage?

Answers to these questions depend on where he's going, and what he's planning to do. Wherever or whatever, he wants to be well equipped with sportswear: jackets, shorts, slacks, sport shirts, bathing trunks and special garments needed for active sports.

Adaptable clothes, too, are the handiest of vacation items. He may want sport shirts that can be worn with a tie, when the occasion calls for one. Undoubtedly he'll need traveling suits that can go to the city, or to the races, or to dinner. And of course, the ubiquitous rayon cord suit or jacket, that he can wear everywhere.

Salem stores are well-stocked with a wide line of spring and summer clothing specials.

Short Story of Suits

NEW YORK—Any backtalk from the "little woman" who says that she's too short to wear a suit is answered this spring by fashions designed to lengthen the line of the petite figure.

As a result the Miss or Missus who is five feet five or under can step out in the suit parade feeling taller and looking it in properly proportioned fashions. Scaled to her size are high-riding waistlines, fuller hiplines and hemlines designed to elongate a figure. The uncluttered line of a suit beginning from hem to upstanding collar is aimed at making a silhouette look as long and slim as a sheathed umbrella.

Even the cape suit spreads out its charms for the "little woman." When the flare of a cape is balanced by a high-riding, slim-fitting skirt, the cape can be as flattering to the petite figure as the suit with a snug-fitting jacket.

Proof is offered in the snappy cape suit (right) of sleek, gray worsted woolen, teamed with a long-sleeved tailored white blouse of pure silk. The slim skirt with a high-riding waistline is figure-lengthening. To give the "little woman" the illusion of more length the cape with a high-climbing collar carries on where the skirt leaves off.

The black and white pincheek suit (left) of worsted woolen owes its tall-making lines to a long, slim skirt and to a snug-fitted and belted jacket. Helping the checked suit to spell out spring for the "petite miss" is a dicker of crisp white cotton broadcloth with a small upstanding collar.

China Conditions Told By Speaker

Seventy people heard Miss Carol Huang, Chinese graduate student at Ohio State university, Friday evening when she spoke in the Presbyterian chapel. She spoke again at the Sunday school hour.

Miss Huang, who wore native attire, told of the Christian work carried on in her province of Fukien, China.

Her sister, Louise Huang, now a graduate student at Scarritt college in Nashville, Tenn., will take up religious work at Foochow. Miss Carol Huang will work in her home conference at Hanghwa.

In her fluent English Miss Huang expressed her indebtedness to the Christian people of the United States for their missionary spirit. The ratio of Christians to the whole population of China is only one in eight hundred, she said. Conditions in China reveal almost unheard of crowding and hunger in the villages and cities, she added.

Educated through college in the schools of China, Miss Huang taught for 11 years in a mission school in which were enrolled 500 girls. Of these 70 percent had tuberculosis in some degree. There is little food and milk is given only to the very sick. The school was destroyed by bombing during the war, but the students and teachers had fled to the hills two weeks before and were carrying on their education, her talk revealed.

Miss Huang stressed the need for both native Christian leaders and American missionaries. China is ripe for either Christianity or Communism, and the Christian forces are small in number, however great in spirit, she declared.

Federal Economist Sees Good Outlook

CHICAGO, March 21—(AP)—Unless businessmen or consumers get panicky, the nation this year should be only slightly less prosperous—and possibly better off—than in 1948, the government's top economist said today.

As a result of "the disinflation of 1949," said Chairman Edwin G. Nourse of the President's council of economic advisers, "we may take off some fat, but we shall not die and need not really suffer."

He said "it is not the voice of Pollyanna but of business statistics that say that underlying conditions are sound and basically favorable."

In an address prepared for the Executive's Club of Chicago, Nourse summarized the economic outlook as follows:

"1949 should show a sustained volume of consumer spending and hence employment only very moderately below last year, production even higher and prices adjusted to a better structure and a level somewhat but not seriously below the peaks of 1948."

Profits should be "as well as or better maintained over the long pull" when industry is working at 90 to 95 per cent of capacity," Nourse said, as under the "recent strained conditions" when mills and mines were forced to 100 per cent of capacity.

2 QUAKERS DENY DRAFT EVASION

CINCINNATI, March 21—(AP)—The first steps to get a U. S. Supreme court ruling on the constitutionality of the peacetime draft law was taken here today when two students at Wilmington college, both Quakers, pleaded innocent to charges of failing to register.

Through their attorney, Douglas R. Parker, 25, and William E. Probasco, 25, both of Wilmington, they said they wanted a trial by jury.

Then S. U. Robinson, Jr., Columbus, O., their attorney, told U. S. District Judge John H. Druffel that it is intended to carry the case to the U. S. Supreme court, if necessary.

The court then set trial date as March 29. Both Parker and Probasco registered for the draft during World war II, and both claimed exemption on grounds that the war conflicted with their religious beliefs. Probasco served three years in a conscientious objectors' camp. Parker, after a physical examination, was classified at 4-F.

Co-op Housing Encouraged by New FHA Law

Government Analysis Now Possible Before Finance Agreements Made

To provide additional encouragement for the development of housing cooperatives, FHA Commissioner Franklin D. Richards has broadened the administration's regulations to permit cooperative groups to secure an analysis of their project, even before financing has been arranged with a lending institution.

Up to the present time a group of individuals planning the development of a housing cooperative had to have a financial institution willing to make the loan before an application could be submitted to the Federal Housing Administration for analysis as to eligibility for mortgage insurance under Section 207 of the National Housing Act. The amended administrative rules permit deferment of the execution of an application by an approved mortgagee until after FHA has analyzed the case.

Law Has Benefits

"The Housing Act of 1948 provided several cooperative housing insurance plans," Mr. Richards pointed out, "and we in FHA have utilized every facility at our disposal to permit the benefits of this legislation to be received by groups interested in developing housing cooperatives. Today's amendment to the administration's requirements is just another means of smoothing the way for cooperative groups."

Under the amended rules it is no longer necessary for sponsors to find a lending institution willing to make the loan before the proposed project can be analyzed by the FHA. Most mortgage lenders have so far had little or no experience in lending on cooperative projects and prior analysis will be helpful in encouraging financing of this type.

Eliminate Pre-Financing

It is expected that the elimination of this requirement will be helpful in developing cooperative projects.

The FHA has already set up a special section in the Washington office to make available to interested groups technical information with reference to the organization of cooperatives and the construction of such projects.

Field offices of the administration throughout the country are now prepared to receive requests for the analysis of cooperative projects direct from sponsoring groups.

The insurance of mortgages on cooperative projects serves as another means of meeting the present housing needs, particularly of many veterans.

Salem Home Has Many Features

If you're a carpenter-contractor and have a helpful father-in-law next door, you might build an attractive small home similar to the one built by Edward Zilavy on Goshen rd., R. D. 4, Salem.

Although not complete, the five-room home of the Zilavys contains many novel features. It will be "U" shaped upon completion with a garage yet to be added to the left-front of the house to make the U.

Two large picture-frame windows have been installed. Both the one in the front and one in the rear of the house allow generous amounts of light to brighten the unusually large living room.

No dining room was installed. Mrs. Zilavy said that as most families eat in the kitchen, they chose to add space to the living room. One side of the living room could easily accommodate a large table for dinner affairs. An attractive fireplace is in one corner of the room.

Aluminum siding was placed on thick sheathing of insulating board to cover the exterior. A deep basement is under the living quarters. It will be used as a recreation room, according to present plans. The house is set on eight-inch concrete blocks which form the walls of the basement.

All of the cupboards and other installations in the kitchen were built by Zilavy. The room is a pastel yellow while the living room is white over the plaster finish. The bathroom is a green and the decorations in two bedrooms have not been finished.

Both bedrooms have corner windows and "Mr. and Mrs." closets. Birch woodwork has been placed in all exposed areas while white pine woodwork is to be painted. Marsh oak was used for the floors of the house which is 50 feet wide, 16 feet deep at the bend of the U and 38 feet deep at the sides of the U.

A gas furnace heats the home and copper pipe was used for all water lines.

Zilavy estimates that the house is in the $12,000 bracket.

'COMPANY TOWN' SYSTEM DOOMED

Miners Buy Homes, Clean Up Ugly Feudal Relic

AP Newfeatures

PITTSBURGH—The ugly feudal "company town" is rapidly disappearing from the western Pennsylvania coalfields.

The coal companies are pulling out of the real estate business. They said it doesn't pay to own the houses miners live in and that ownership brought too much criticism.

Once made necessary by isolated positions of mines, the company-owned town was made obsolete by good roads and automobiles. At one time nearly 200,000 miners and their families lived in company towns. Now the figure has dropped to 30,000 and is still falling.

The miners are buying out the company. With the pride of new home owners everywhere they are busy with paint brush and hammer, remodeling and patching.

Company towns were once common in this area. Rows of drab, unpainted frame houses lined up in straggling order on gullied, unpaved streets gave passers-by a hurried glimpse of one of the worst features of miners' lives. Most of them lacked any kind of sanitary facilities, grass or shade.

Now the mining companies are selling out to the miner-occupants. The worst of the company houses are being torn down.

The company town was born before the turn of the century when operators began opening new mines in out-of-the-way spots. The mine owners were forced to supply living quarters for the employees, they brought in.

Admitted evils crept in. In the 1920's when union organizers were active it was easy for some companies to fence in company towns and deny admittance to those without a company pass. Miners were forced to trade at the "company store" with the result they were paid off in "kisses"—meaning a list of "X's" denoting deduction for rent, groceries and other items.

Many coal companies found they were running in the red maintaining company towns. The labor market was fluid and miners could drive 15 to 20 miles to work. The union was strong enough to fight its battles.

The miners in the houses were given the first chance to buy, usually at a low price and often on very easy terms.

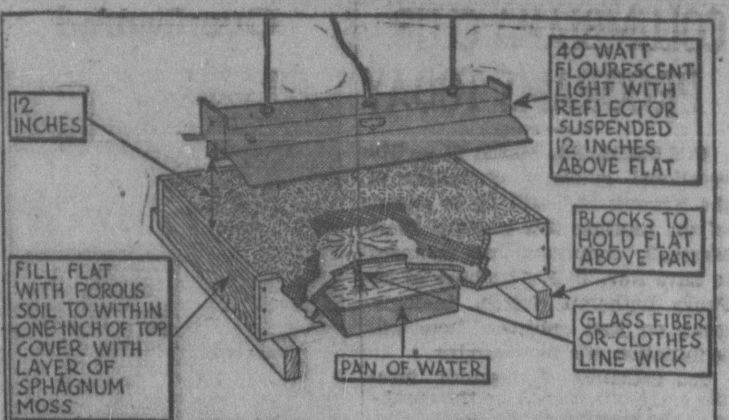

New Bathtub Stainproof

A stainproof porcelain enameled bathtub can be secured now for the same or a lesser price than ordinarily might be paid for a regular quality fixture, according to the Briggs Manufacturing Company of Detroit.

The stainproof porcelain enameled bathtub cleans like wiping off a pane of glass, it is claimed.

The bathtub now in the home may be acid eaten and hard to clean, it was pointed out. If the tub has vertical streaks that are exceptionally hard to clean, the glass has been damaged by acid.

Acids commonly found in the home are said to have no effect on stainproof porcelain enamel bathtubs. A tub with a wide rim seat is recommended.

New Seed Box Designed, Start Plants In Home

Grandfather's method of sowing garden seeds in a box to grow in the kitchen window during the winter have been subjected by experimentations to a series of rigid tests. Sometimes grandpas succeeded, and sometimes he failed; without knowing exactly why.

Science demands first to know why, and then seeks a way to prevent failure. If all the protective measures which have been recommended in the last few years were applied to a single seed box (see illustration) here is what it would have:

1—Automatic watering, by the wick method, to make sure the soil never dried out.

2—A layer of sphagnum moss on top of the soil, in which the seeds were sown, to prevent disease, especially "damping off," which cannot develop in the anti-biotic moss.

3—A lamp, preferably fluorescent, suspended a foot above the box, so it can be turned on to supplement the daylight, whenever light is needed.

With this equipment, none of which is expensive, any amateur gardener ought to be able to sow seeds of flowers or vegetables in an indoor box, and bring the seedling plants up to transplanting size without disaster.

Most important of these devices is probably wick watering, which is as simple as an oil lamp. A wick, preferably of fibre glass, is passed through a hole centered in the bottom of the box. The top of the wick is imbedded in the soil, the bottom drops into a pan below the box, and as long as there is water in the pan, the soil will be kept moist. With a large enough pan you can leave the box for days without attention.

Sphagnum moss will not allow plant fungi to develop. By spreading a layer of moss on top of the soil, sowing the seeds in it, and covering lightly with more moss, germination will be quick, and loss by disease nil. But the moss will not take up water from below, and if wick-watering is used, it must be watered from above until the seedlings grow roots which reach the soil.

Artificial lighting is not necessary, where a south window unshaded by outside trees or building, is available. But where it is not, if a fluorescent lamp is hung over the box, as indicated by the diagram, and kept lighted all night, the plants will get enough light. It will not be needed until they sprout. Mazda lights may be used, but they should be hung higher, so that the night temperature of the box does not rise above 65 degrees.

Proper Lot Important To Building

By PAUL T. HAAGEN
Noted Architect of Small Homes

When one plans to build a house, the first consideration should be the selection of the site or property.

There are many things to consider before purchasing the property, for all house plans will not fit on every lot and initial care should be exercised.

Here are some of the conditions to check on. Neighborhood, and type of neighbors, schools, churches, social centers and playgrounds, transportation, improvements in and paid for such as paving, sewers, curbing and the utilities; is the property high or low? A low lot may need filling; a steep or high lot, grading. And finally, what restrictions are there on the property and do they tend to increase the value of the property?

Lot widths vary, so do house plans in most instances, and the location of the garage oftentimes determines the house plan that may be built on a given lot.

A wide inside lot will naturally allow a house plan that may be set lengthwise to the street with room in the rear for a garden, a garage drive at one side of the attached garage at one end of the building.

A long, narrow lot requires a house plan running lengthwise from front to back of the lot. If there is an alley in the rear, the garage may well be placed so it can be entered from the alley. If a side drive is wished, or an attached garage at one side of the house, then the width of the drive or garage will reduce the width of the main house and may cramp the size of the rooms.

The corner lot on the other hand is almost ideal for a small house because with two street frontages, excellent outlook, light and ventilation are gained and the garage may be placed at one end of the house plan and a drive built to it from the less important street.

Suburban sites, usually with larger areas, do not offer such a problem to the home builder, but slope of land, and the proper placing of the house is so first importance. Do not cut down all the trees. Trees take years to grow and a snug little house set among trees will be easier to landscape and will present a more attractive appearance.

Upward Trend In City Real Estate Continues

CHICAGO — (UP) — A survey shows that the upward trend in assessed valuation of big city real estate is continuing.

The survey was conducted by the National Association of Assessing Officers, and covers 46 places with more than 100,000 population.

It discloses that the latest totals average 6.35% higher than those of the year.

Cities in Texas report the fastest rising valuations, the survey showed. The highest percentage increase was reported by Houston, Tex., where the real estate roll rose from about $282,000,000 to $300,000,000, a boost of more than 48%.

Fort Worth, Tex., was runner-up, with a 44.7% increase. The city's valuation now totals $253,000,000. San Antonio ranked third in proportionate increases with a rise of 44.30%.

High increases were reported by San Diego, $1.54%; Dade county (Miami), Fla., 17.15%; Utica, N. Y., 15.91; Pierce county (Tacoma), Wash., 14.45; Multnomah county (Portland), Ore., 13.90, and Los Angeles county, Cal., 13.84%.

But the biggest dollar increase reported was the $646,000,000 jump in valuation reported by New York City, an increase of 3.91%.

New York now has a total real estate assessed valuation of $17,584,493,000.

The Association of Assessing Officers said new construction accounted for 63% of the increased valuations and higher values for 37%. Thirty-one tax jurisdictions reported that building construction costs were higher than a year ago and that the increase averaged 15%.

Wood Pulp Process Devised For Mass Furniture Making

By WILLIAM J. CONWAY
Associated Press Staff Writer

CHICAGO — (AP) — A new technique for making furniture has been developed by the Armour Research Foundation.

It is aimed at the mass production of strong fiber furniture at lower costs.

Combination backs and seats for chairs have been produced in one piece in a pilot plant. The process works like this:

Wood pulp similar to that used in paper mills is put in a heater and broken down. The beaten pulp is placed in a felting tank and diluted with water. Suction draws the pulp fibers to a die that is covered with a fine screen and is shaped like the back and seat of a chair. The fibers accumulate on the screen in the shape of the die and build up to the desired thickness.

The die is removed from the tank and the mat of fibers that formed on it is separated from the die by compressed air. The mat—called a preform—is dipped in a resinous solution until it is completely saturated. Then it is cured in an oven. If a smoother finish is wanted, the preform can be put in a hydraulic molding press and pressed under high pressure and high temperature.

The result is a one-piece back and seat that can be made into a complete chair by fastening it to a one-piece metal leg unit with screws.

Researchers say they could produce a whole chair by the same method if they used a die designed for that purpose. They also say they could turn out chairs in any color by adding the proper pigment.

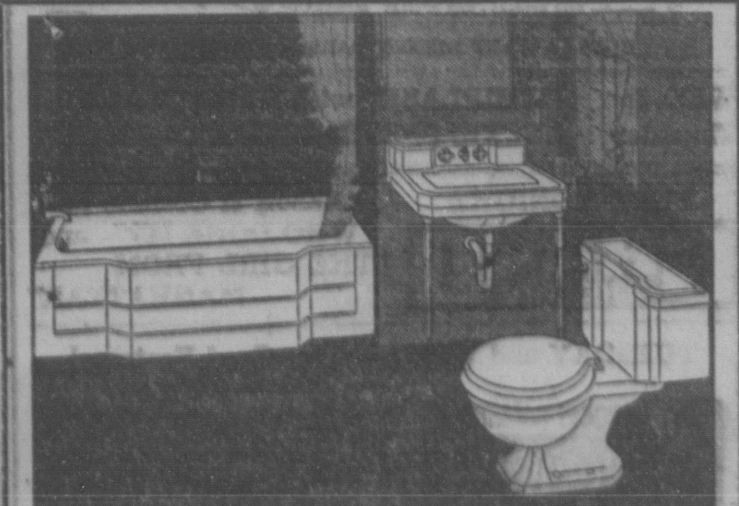

"We feel we have done something revolutionary," says Layton C. Kinney, supervisor of chemical engineering research. It's largely an automatic process—a step in the direction of an automatic factory."

He figures that making a chair in one or two parts would cut assembly work to a minimum and that making it without joints would eliminate weak spots.

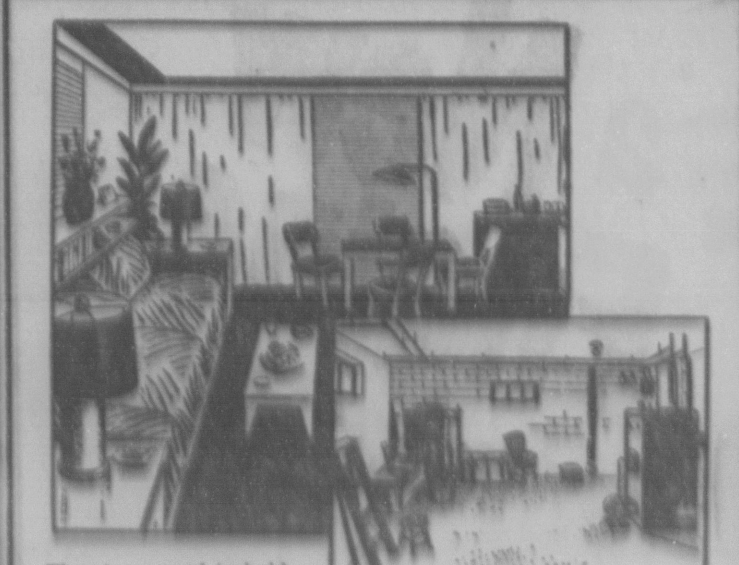

"An article turned out by this process," he says, "would be cheaper and longer lasting."

The same methods could be used, he says, to make drawers and coffee and end tables.

Dr. Louis Koenig, chairman of the chemical engineering research department, says chairs could be turned out "by the hundreds with only a few operators."

Building of Million Homes Is Possibility In 1949

The housing industry in this country has the capacity to reach at least the million mark in housing production this year if all parts of it combine their efforts toward meeting the prevailing market needs, Raymond M. Foley, administrator of the Housing & Home Finance Agency, says.

Mr. Foley said he is fully aware

FIND DEMAND FOR MASS-BUILT HOME

Builders Explain Success Of Long Island Project

NEW YORK—Houses should be mass-produced like automobiles to compete in today's home market, says one of the nation's most successful builders.

William J. Levitt of suburban Manhasset, Long Island, believes that if builders would organize like big manufacturing businesses, new homes could be bigger and better at no greater cost.

Obviously you can't move houses down a conveyor.

But you can move specialized workers along a line of houses. And you can arrange delivery of materials and components, just like the flow of automobile parts to an assembly line.

Levitt has used such methods in building some 8,000 houses since the war. Most of these have been in the low-price class, but he has just tapped a new field.

Ignoring reports that demand for $20,000 homes was drying up, Levitt has just sold 100 of them—$20,000 worth—in two days.

When such houses are sold and unsold, he said in an interview, it's a case of "too little house for too much money."

Much of the fault, he believes, lies with "rugged individualists who use the same building methods their grandfathers did."

As proof, that mass-production techniques will produce good home values, Levitt submits the record of Levitt & Sons (he's president and one of the sons).

This company has mechanized its work wherever possible, has specialized crews working on an assembly-line basis from house to house. It produces its own lumber, nails and cement blocks, has its own warehouse.

Hires No Union Labor. Set up as an industry, Levitt & Sons has complete engineering, landscaping and legal departments. It even has a plan for workers' retirement at 65, for which it bears the expense.

The company hires no union labor. Levitt is not over-critical of the productivity of unskilled workers, most of whom he says are working on short jobs with uncertain future.

With his organization, Levitt has nearly completed a new community of 6,000 four-room homes for rental and eventual sale to veterans. Families are moving into "Levittown" houses, as fast as they are finished, at the rate of 150 a week.

To Levitt, two things are especially anathema—the confusion of building codes and distribution methods of makers of building products.

"In our little area of Long Island," Levitt said, "we are building under five different codes. Materials approved for some of our houses are forbidden for others."

His solution is a proposal (which he has made to Gov. Thomas E. Dewey) that uniform state-wide codes be adopted.

Air-Conditioning Now Approaching Necessity

Home air-conditioning is no longer a dream but something you should consider when remodeling or building, just as you do indoor plumbing and central heating, according to Better Homes & Gardens magazine.

If you're remodeling fairly extensively, year-round air-conditioning with a central system can be installed with reasonable economy. If you don't plan a major remodeling, both government and private predictions on homebuilding in 1949 are "that we will produce from 50,000 to 75,000 fewer homes this year than we did in 1948, and that even those predictions assumed that more housing would be built at lower prices."

But these predictions," he said, "are estimates of what the private industry will do. When I speak of a million units, I am talking about what the industry can do. It is probably true that if we do not get more united effort in the homebuilding industry this year than we have ever had, we will at best fall somewhat below the 1948 volume of housing production."

"But we should not accept such predictions as representing all that we can achieve. Like some other predictions of recent memory, these too can be overturned by vigorous action and a determined belief in what can be done."

Mr. Foley said that the answer as to whether we can raise our sights and meet more of our needs and hopes this year is being written by thousands of participants in the "town meetings" of the housing industry which the HHFA has initiated. These meetings, representing all segments of the housing industry, are being held this month in all the principal towns and cities of the country to combine their forces in the Economy Housing drive.

Tests Show Storm Doors Reduce Fuel Bills 20%

Use of insulation and storm doors and windows increases living comfort in the home and effects economy by cutting fuel bills.

Tests made in the warm-air research residence at the University of Illinois indicate that tightly-fitting storm sash applied to all the windows in the house resulted in a saving in fuel consumption of about 20 per cent. A properly installed storm sash not only reduces the heat loss through the glass, but also reduces air leakage around the windows.

Cracks around the windows and doors plan an important part in heat losses. Joints and crevices in the structure permit air, dirt and rain to leak through. They can be sealed with caulking compounds.

Tips for prolonging the wear of men's wool serge suits come from U. S. Department of Agriculture specialists. Reinforcements put under the seat of trousers at button-holes, pocket-edges and under cuffs when the suit is new will save future repairs. Experiments show that wool clothing wears out most frequently as a result of stress and strain of ordinary use rather than from dry cleaning or aging.

Roll - Roofings Are Suggested

At a time when reshingling or replacement of a roof covering is a very expensive item, the home owner would do well to consider what the roll-roofings now on the market have to offer.

Roll-roofing has been used for many years as a covering for the small, inexpensive house. The better qualities combine both lasting protection and a wide choice of colors. The application of the material is extremely simple.

If a shingled house roof has deteriorated to the point where a new roof is absolutely essential, the owner has his choice of stripping off the old shingles and replacing them with new ones, or over-shingling, which means to apply the new shingles over the old, or of covering the old shingles with a good grade of roll-roofing.

It is also possible to cover the old shingles with strip-roofing which is composed of strips of composition shingles. For extreme ease we recommend the roll-roofing.

Roll-roofing comes in rolls which are laid directly over the old roof and lapped so that the weather cannot get up under the lap. A mastic is applied along the edge of the first and lowest strip of the roofing, and nailed down at intervals according to the recommendations which come with each roll of the material. When the mastic is spread and the edges nailed according to directions, the owner will have a tight roof at small cost for the next five to ten years.

There may be some objection to roll-roofing on the grounds of appearance, but it might be said that where the selection of color is good and the job neatly executed, the material presents an excellent value for the average house.

sively, year-round air-conditioning may be your answer. If you're building a new home, make sure the system is laid out by a heating man familiar with air-conditioning.

There are nearly as many types of air-conditioners as there are heating devices. With zoning controls, you can maintain one temperature in one part of the house and another elsewhere.

The conditioners clean the air by washing it with a water spray, by filtering it mechanically or by precipitating the dirt electrically. They are operated by gas, oil, coal and electricity.

Bar Heat Loss of Picture Windows

Modern architecture has brought the large picture window and window wall into vogue for new and modernized American homes. In small homes, the advantage of the large glass area lies in its contribution to a feeling of added space and to making possible dramatic new decorative effects.

There are problems, however. Not the least of these is the problem of providing comfortable warmth in rooms where heat loss through a large glass area is apt to be great.

To offset this heat loss, new heating units for installation directly beneath the window areas have been developed.

In many modern homes, these new units are partially recessed in the walls directly beneath the window areas. These new cabinet-type units add to the decorative charm because they may be painted to harmonize beautifully with nearby draperies, woodwork or adjoining walls. Where recessing is not feasible, the new units may be installed flush against the walls.

Most popular of the present-day heating units for this type of installation are the new convective radiators for use on steam or hot water heating systems. In addition to their versatility of installation, convectors provide the modulated heat necessary in rooms where changing outside temperatures are likely to affect indoor conditions.

By placing the central thermostat control at a spot where temperatures are likely to remain relatively constant, comfortable warmth may be maintained in rooms with large glass areas by virtue of the manual damper control with which most convectors are equipped. This allows efficient control of heat output in each individual room, without upsetting operation of the central control mechanism.

Hotter Water Makes A Cleaner Whiter Wash

Without the hot water supplied by the automatic gas water heater in this well-planned laundry, the washing the housewife is doing could not be thoroughly clean and white. Fresh hot water is needed for soaking, for each load in the washer, for rinsing three times at temperatures from 100 to 160 degrees Fahrenheit to get a cleaner and whiter wash.

SMALL HOME IS STORAGE-CONSCIOUS

THE BALDWIN is a snug 4-room home. It features plenty of storage space and a convenient central hall which connects all of the rooms as well as the front entrance vestibule.

Among the ten closets included in this storage-conscious home are coat closets in each entrance vestibule, storage closets, linen and general closets in the hall and wardrobes in each of the two bedrooms.

For extra building economy, the kitchen is located next to the bathroom, and the laundry is directly beneath it. This arrangement reduces the cost of plumbing installation. Dining space is situated next to the window in the kitchen, assuring light and air. Cabinets are arranged on the opposite wall. The kitchen also has a pot and pan closet and a broom closet.

Other desirable features in this small home are the roomy side vestibule with closet; the wall space in the living room; the recessed bath tub and spacious front porch. The dimensions of the main body of the house are 32 feet by 24 feet. There is a total area of only 885 square feet, without the porch, and 16,815 cubic feet.

For further information about THE BALDWIN write to the Small House Planning Bureau, St. Cloud, Minn.

Home Expert Gives Tips

EVANSTON, Ill.—(UP)—A Northwestern university housing expert says prospective homebuilders should not worry about how their houses are going to look.

It will be all right if it fits the family, no matter what shape, size or color is finally picked, according to Mrs. Dorothy Clark Bohnen, instructor in the home economics department.

Forget about whether the new house is going to be as nice as the one the Jones' built, or whether it's a fashionable style, she warns.

Here are the things that Mrs. Bohnen thinks should be considered, even before consulting an architect or real estate agent:

Family income, occupation of the head of the house, family history, possessions and interests of the family, extent of home entertaining, cooking and dining interests and needs, home requirements of indi-

'Test Residence' To Be Heated By Sun-Water Unit

CAMBRIDGE, Mass.—Sun-heated water is to be used in an experimental house just completed here to determine how effectively solar heating will replace coal and oil in keeping the dwelling comfortable in the cold weather of a New England winter.

The building, just recently opened, was erected by the Massachusetts Institute of Technology and is to be used in connection with solar heating investigations. Construction of the house and the research directly associated with it is a project dividual family members, use of the home by others than the immediate family, such as weekend guests; domestic help, if any, and gardening, pets and garage facilities.

rectly under Edmund L. Czapak, research associate in architecture.

The completed house is a one-story affair with five rooms. It resembles ordinary modern small dwellings, except for the roof structure. The south slope of the roof, with heat collector, inclines 37 degrees to the horizontal, presenting an area of 400 square feet on which the sun's heat is received. Water warmed by the sun in a special "flat plate" collector located on the roof of the house, is used for storing and distributing the heat.

Once warmed by the sun, the water is pumped into an insulated tank in which it is held for use during sunless hours. The tank has a capacity of 1,200 gallons.

The parts of the entire system include the roof collectors; an attic storage tank; a radiant ceiling heating unit, two circulating pumps and controls. Whenever the sun heats the water in the roof collectors to a temperature above that in the storage tank, a pump circulates the water from storage tank to roof and back. At other times the flow is cut off. Warmed water for room heating is circulated by the second pump.

Boyle's COLUMN

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK—(AP)—In 1897 an obscure farmer named John Nobody was kicked to death by a mule in the vicinity of Peculiar, Mo.
 Having led a fairly reasonable life without cheating anyone—this was before the days when a man filled out an income tax blank—John went to heaven.
 He quickly rose to the third assistant harp from the left in the heavenly symphony orchestra. But John's heart wasn't in his harp. He was homesick for earth, because he had left it too suddenly.
 So he pulled all the strings he could—and they weren't all on his harp—and made this plea:
 "Gimme a two-week vacation from heaven, and then I'll come back and strum my harp forever and be content. But right now I'm still a powerful lonesome man."

WELL, HE HAD a good straw boss. The man said, scratching himself under the wing:
 "John, you rustle that harp good as anybody. But a lonesome man don't make group music. Go back and take your look—see, and we'll keep your job here open."
 Well, Mr. Nobody finally got his celestial passport okayed and plumed down toward Missouri.
 Who-o-o-o-o-m-i-l! Swish-h-h-h-h-h! Any Army B-36 zoom-

he said. "We're going to have to whip her yet."
 "Spain?" said the grandson. "Where you been, old man? We whupped Spain long ago. We been through Germany twice since then, and Japan, too. Now Russia's acting up."
 "Russia?" said John. "Law! Where is that?"
 "You mean we been through three big wars in the last 50 years and are looking forward to another?" said Old John incredulously.
 Old John walked out into the fields. He hitch-hiked a ride on the next big cloud that floated by. When he got back to heaven all the angels said:
 "You sure got a nice tan on your vacation, John. What was it like?"
 But the old man just shook his head and said nothing. They said that ever after that, as his gnarled hands swept across his harp in the celestial choir, John Nobody always looked up. He never glanced earthward again.

Growth of Television Stressed At Meeting

COLUMBUS, March 21—(AP)—Television as a national advertising medium is making great strides, the advertising and sales promotion conference was told here yesterday.
 The conference continues today under sponsorship of the college of commerce and administration at Ohio State university.
 George L. Moskovich, manager of sales development for CBS Television, New York, addressing a television seminar at the conference, told of the rapid development of television in advertising.
 He said by the end of 1949 there will be 71 market areas serving 63,000,000 people—a potential market serving more than half the nation with television.
 He differed with the belief that television receivers are mostly owned by those in high income groups.

Luck Rides With Him

WATERTOWN, Mass.—Driving in a minor snow storm, Curtis A. Morrell lost control.
 The car skidded, bounded over a mid-street traffic island, skinned between a maple tree and a pole, mowed down a 10-foot Christmas tree set up as a town decoration, hopped a curb and halted with a bumper against a stone wall.
 Morrell stepped out, pale but unhurt.
